

HYDROCARBON BLEND

I. OPREA

University "Dunarea de Jos" of Galati, ROMANIA
Domneasca Str, Nr.47.tel.0236414871
e-mail: ioprea@ugal.ro

ABSTRACT

HC Refrigerants can actually enhance the life and performance of air conditioning and refrigeration equipment. This reduces energy requirements and prevents system leakage. HC Refrigerants provide more efficient performance than the man-made, synthetic refrigerants they replace.

REFERENCES

1. Lohbeck, W., „Hydrocarbons and other progressive ansewera torefrigerations”, Proceedings of the International CFC and Halon Alternatives Conference, WashingtonD, 1995.
2. Maclaine, I.L., „Why Hydrocarbons Save Energy”, AIRAH Jurnal, 1997.
3. Strong, D., „Natural refrigerants: the next revolution ?”, Refrigeration and Air Conditioning, 1994
4. Aisbett, E. K. and Pham, Q. T., 1998, Natural replacements for ozone-depleting refrigerants in eastern and southern Asia, International Journal of Refrigeration, Vol. 21, No.1
5. Avallone, E. A. and Baumeister, T., 1986, Marks' Standard Handbook for Mechanical Engineers 9th ed., McGraw-Hill, New York,
6. Carter, W. P. L., 1994, Development of Ozone Reactivity Scales for Volatile Organic Compounds, Air and Waste, Vol. 44, July.