

EXPERIMENTAL STUDY OF THE FUEL COMPOSITION ON DIESEL EXHAUST EMISSIONS

Djermal MEHMEDOV, Kiril BARZEV, Aleksandar TRENDAFILOV
University of Ruse, BULGARIA
8, Studentska Street, 7017 Ruse, Phone: +359 82 888450; Fax: +359 82 845362
E-mail: dmehedov@ru.acad.bg, barzev@ru.acad.bg, atrendafilov@ru.acad.bg

ABSTRACT

An experimental study was performed to evaluate the performance and exhaust emissions (NO_x , PM, CO, CO_2 , CH and Opacity) of two cylinder air-cooled diesel engine, using fuels with different composition (mainly oxygenated compounds).

REFERENCES

1. Upatnieks, A. et al, "Investigation of the Relationship Between DI Diesel Combustion Processes and Engine-Out Soot Using an Oxygenated Fuel", SAE 2004-01-1400, SAE World Congress, Detroit, Michigan
2. Cheng, A. et al, "The Effect of Oxygenates on Diesel Engine Particulate Matter", SP-1716, 2002-01-1705, pag.47-58
3. Hu, C. et al, "Effects of Ethanol in Ester-Ethanol-Diesel Blended Fuels on Spray Behavior and PM Emissions", SP-2014, 2006-01-0236, pag.97-105
4. Buchholz, B. et al, "Isotopic Tracing of Bio-Derived Carbon from Ethanol-in-Diesel Blends in the Emissions of a Diesel Engine", SP-1716, 2002-01-1704, pag.37-35
5. Bielaczyc, P. et al, "Effects of Fuel Properties on Exhaust Emissions from the Latest Light-Duty DI Diesel Engine", SAE 2003-01-1882, JSAE/SAE International Spring Fuels & Lubricants Meeting, Yokohama, Japan.