

METROLOGY AND THERMAL ENERGY

Mirela DRAGOMIR

Romanian Bureau of Legal Metrology

Stiintei Str, Nr. 60, Galati.tel.0236414189, fax 0236.412950

e-mail: dragomir_mrl@yahoo.com

ABSTRACT

This contribution is conceived in order to measure some quality features of thermal energy .The paper starts with metrology as the measurement of science.In the second part of the paper we present the close conection between information and measuring instruments.

REFERENCES

- [1] IONITA, C.I., POPA.V. “The Analysis of the HVAC Systems Using Cost-to-Quality Criterion of Optimization”. 7th REHVA World Congress Clima 2000, Napoli 2001, Proceedings on CD.
- [2] IONITA, C.I. “Engineering and Economic Optimization of Energy Production” International Journal of Energy Research, Article Reference No.811, Journals Production Dept., 26: 697-715 (DOI: 10.1002/er.811), John Wiley&Sons, Ltd, Chichester, UK.
- [3] IONITA, C.I. “Extending thermo-economic analysis by cost to quality optimisation”. Proceedings of ECOS 2002 July 3-5, 2002, Berlin, Germany, pag.1434-1441.
- [4] JÄGER, F., KOCHSIEK, M., „New challenges to metrology at the beginning of 21st century”, International metrology conference, vol.1, 2001, pag.9.
- [5] KAARLS, R., „Needs, requirements, developments and agreements.” International metrology conference, vol.1, 2001, pag.14-15.
- [6] MILLEA, A., „Application of information theory concepts in metrology.” International metrology conference, vol.1, 2001, pag.67-70.
- [7] www.ptb.de